Whispers from The Brighter World

What do you mean by 'serving you correctly', the wish you express each day in your prayer? To serve with all one's soul is to open one's heart totally to the Divine and in a state of full availability, without asking oneself the how and why of what must be accomplished. It is, at a certain level, about losing one's identity as a spiritual being. It is letting oneself be carried away – with trust – in the swirl of divine energy and, like a leaf dancing in the wind, settling where one's destiny awaits. It is also like having a kind of double life, playing one's role as a human being, while letting one's heart follow the path marked out by the one to whom it is offered. All this can be achieved easily, in perfect harmony. The essential thing is to love and to let oneself be carried away, happy to generously offer the best of oneself.
