Whispers from The Brighter World

Saturday, September 25, 1999 – 8:00 a.m.

Your friend is right, you are our 'brave soldier'. Life is a long struggle, with certain times calmer than others, but it remains nevertheless a kind of battle. Victories won over oneself, and over circumstances one is presented with, are gratifying.

You can all go through moments of lassitude and discouragement and thus lose your footing temporarily, but with the help of faith and courage, you regain your equilibrium. In those moments when grace touches you, you recover your strength and set out again, realizing that your burden has become lighter.

Sometimes it is necessary to hit bottom in order to climb back up again with more strength and determination.

We follow you all and help you in all your states of mind. We are not indifferent to any aspects of your lives. You have given us your trust; we are happy to count you among our associates. You belong to a great spiritual family that will never cease growing over time. May you all be blessed.
