Whispers from The Brighter World

Thursday, September 30, 1999 – 10:00 a.m.

Free yourself from all these thoughts that are running through your head, and come join us. Otherwise, how do you expect us to communicate? Leave aside this fax idea for the moment and open the channel for good!

My son worries too much about his succession – that will happen in due course. Time on Earth seems long to him; he too would like to come join us. The greatness of his mission is inscribed here on Earth. He must see it through to the end and not get lost in groundless considerations for the moment. Who better than he to manage, as he does, this immense enterprise? He is a being of great spiritual dimension as well as a shrewd businessman! He is perfect in his role.

I too had only one idea in mind: to rejoin my most Revered Master. He let me languish for a long time, but it had to be that way. No one will take the select place we reserve for him here, so he can wait.

The succession won't be easy. His successor must have broad shoulders, a great discernment regarding human behaviour, and especially the know-how to choose collaborators whom he can trust completely, in giving them responsibilities. The very nature of human beings is so often changeable and puzzling that it takes long experience of human behaviour to make judicious choices. Errors are inevitable, and sometimes necessary, in order to start over on stronger foundations. Everything needs to be learned and earned.
