Yes, we can carry on with this issue: Love. We have not run out of arguments, but they are insufficient. Love cannot be explained. It must be lived, felt, and transcended. It is, at the same time, the giving of self and the capacity to receive. One should meditate on this formula.

Self-giving – total, unreserved giving – and the unlimited capacity to receive. Both must balance out and really be experienced.

It is true that not everyone is blessed with it. Speaking about it is important, and being sensitized on this aspect is too. We address the issue in the Mission by trying to get to the bottom of things; that is new and was not done a few years ago, especially in the Occident. Hearts are opening, imperceptibly the work is being done. Imagine that one day, you will all be nothing but Love; it would be a kind of Eden.

It will take a long process to get there, but speaking about its reality and its importance constitutes quite an event.

A great step has been taken. It is good to organize seminars on this topic. That opens the consciousness; all arguments evoked make their way into people's minds and cannot help but touch them. One day or another, the greatest number will open up to this truth.

In a sense, Love is a more powerful force than the atom: it can transform the world, revive it and make it radiant.

It's up to you all to really want it and to work in your hearts so that it becomes reality.
