Whispers from The Brighter World

Monday, October 18, 1999 – 8:00 a.m.

With my son, we do not have this kind of communication; so it is. We meet up on other planes and our souls can commune; it is another kind of contact.

We wish that some of these messages should reach him; they are a confirmation of information we give him through other means.

A high-level Master does not necessarily have this gift; you must consider yourself privileged to have it and to appreciate it at its true worth. We use it, nothing is given by chance. It is inscribed in your destiny, and you make good use of it by reserving it for us.

My dear child, although your incarnation is not easy, you have some unusual compensations, and you do recognize it. You also know how to hide your treasures from mortal eyes. For our part, we know and we use them, since you let us make use of your person in the most complete surrender. Our hearts vibrate in unison now and forever.
