Whispers from The Brighter World

Tuesday, October 26, 1999 – 8:00 a.m.

You cannot really know what love is. You all get close to it, you feel the vibration of it, but being incarnate doesn't allow you to truly access that state. Love is a specifically divine element. It attracts you, you feel it vibrating within you, you tend towards that sublime state, and as you advance towards the goal, you begin to be imbued with it. You aspire to it with all your might, it is your soul that calls it desperately. This entire journey has but one goal, one sole objective: to lead you to Him, to let yourselves be submerged and become 'One' with Him. Fusion – that is the realization of this vast programme, requiring so much time, effort and a very strong longing to succeed. God never remains insensitive to the call of His creature. The truly motivated aspirant is heard, supported and guided.

Arriving at this destination is quite an achievement; thereafter another trajectory will be proposed to each of you, and if you want to, you will be able to embark on it with full knowledge.
