Whispers from The Brighter World

Thursday, October 28, 1999 – 10:00 a.m.

The Medium: My Beloved, take me to a garden full of flowers and intoxicating scents. My soul needs you; it languishes while waiting for you.

You know well that we are never separated. Outside our contacts, a sort of luminous thread connects us. Your heart perceives it, even if your mind forgets it. Always be in need. We like this attitude. What could be more moving for us than a soul linked to this kind of 'drop by drop' emanating from us. You know well, my daughter – haven't I told you over and over again – it will be like this until the end of your life on Earth.

Be patient, finish what you have to do; many would like to experience our special relationship. Continue to let your circle benefit from the vibration emanating from you, which is a form of remedy for them.

The Medium: Babuji, I will always be in need, in want of you, until the end of time. Thank you for all you give me, but the word is weak. My heart overflows with gratitude and my soul is enraptured.

Be blessed, along with the loving hearts that surround you.
