Whispers from The Brighter World

Saturday, October 30, 1999 – 9:30 a.m.

You do well in making your arrangements so that our contact can take place. We have no time to waste. We have reached a stage where we are operating at an increasingly fast pace.

As the well-known adage goes: 'Never put off till tomorrow...' et cetera. We are making progress in these messages despite some difficult phases. You have never given up and we appreciate that; service comes before all else, but grace is not enough – courage is also needed.

This third series is about to come to a close. Do you all want to continue? Aren't you tired of our discourse? Ask your hearts and give us your answer.

Actually, there are still a few little things to say, even if they're not of primary importance. All the major themes have already been developed. We can come back to them; you don't remember them all.

Some have struck you more than others, and you have assimilated them. If you all wish, we will go back over the topics already addressed. It is by insisting through repetition that the being becomes deeply imbued with the essential truths.

As we continue, we will refine our work. Our aim is to achieve masterpieces. We watch over you particularly and assess with pleasure the impact these writings have on you. Do you all realize it? You can be satisfied.
