Whispers from The Brighter World

This doctor has a good approach to the reality of the heart. Important aspects escape him, but he has a good grasp of the issue.

A day will come when everything that we say about the 'heart as the seat of the soul' will be scientifically demonstrated.

Dr. Pearsall[1] has already journeyed on a spiritual path which opened his perception. It is good that abhyasis, having sufficiently enlightened minds and able to understand his comments, are reading this book.

In the future, everything will be provable; what is explained in our books is not yet very comprehensible, but it will be so for future generations.

Some need to rely on virtually mathematical data, their minds function that way.

There are various ways of addressing such important questions. There are the intuitives who accept straightaway, and the arguers who need rhetoric to reinforce their way of thinking. Whatever the path taken to reach the goal, the essential thing is to reach it.
