Whispers from The Brighter World

Monday, December 6, 1999 – 8:00 a.m.

If I am your light on Earth, why do you not want to write it? Your circle has known it for a long time. More than once we have urged you to write what you felt or what you experienced so strongly; it's not a weakness to express one's feelings. There is nothing mawkish in that and it took a lot of effort on your part; it was intended. In that kind of situation where sincerity is total, excessive modesty is not desirable. It sometimes makes you miss out on a true soul encounter. As far as you are concerned, it was nearly a therapy, which might give food for thought to some of the readers of those lines.

For a healthy being in that kind of relationship and spiritual love, there is nothing to hide. Showing how it is possible to love beyond Earthly bonds is something beautiful and not excessive, believe me.

It is God whom you love, through me, the being divinized by His grace and whose representation reassures you. He Himself has no face and did not materialize on Earth, leaving disciples and writings. Love fearlessly and boundlessly, and may you be an example for others who dare not, even inwardly, express themselves in that way.
