Whispers from The Brighter World

Tuesday, December 14, 1999 – 10:00 a.m.

It is truly now that the future of the Mission must be built. You are all entering a new era and will have to develop your ability to adapt. Society will transform on all levels, following upheavals of all kinds. On the economic level, increasingly refined technology will produce human tragedies. Human beings will have to cope and keep up, willingly or by force, in order to survive. This process is already underway; the culmination of this mutation is not for tomorrow, don't panic. Progress, since we must call it that, is inhuman in many ways, but it cannot be stopped. Be both in the world – as you must all take responsibility for your lives – and out of the world by taking refuge in your sadhana.

Not everyone is so fortunate. Shrinks are increasingly numerous, and for their part, they are not about to be out of work.

People are withdrawing into themselves and communicating with difficulty. Various forms of pollution are attacking their physical health and balance. All this should normally push them to find the remedy within themselves.
