Whispers from The Brighter World

Wednesday, December 15, 1999 – 8:00 a.m.

Sulochana said it well, it is a delight for us to be able to communicate with him in this way, through you. My son is feeling alone and is going through difficult moments of weariness. After all these years of effort, this is a human reaction and completely normal as far as he is concerned. He is a being apart and must assume his day-to-day life, with all it entails on the material and spiritual levels.

The message that will reach him for the end of this year will be of great comfort.

Although we surround him with all possible love, he must face, alone, his destiny.

Like every incarnate being, he cannot escape it. Small or large, whatever roles you all have to play, that's how it is, you must all see your mandate through to the end.

Whether this incarnation is chosen or not, the result is the same; there is no question of going back.

Regarding the deletion of your intervention in yesterday's message, that is out of the question. You are not a robot, and it's normal for you to exchange a few words with the entities who are in contact with you.
