Whispers from The Brighter World

Monday, December 27, 1999 – 10:00 a.m.

Your devotion boils down to what is essential: you love without asking yourself questions. That is the path to wisdom. Some need to lean on bookish knowledge – which was your case in the past – then one day all that seemed superfluous. Knowledge comes from within; it seeps its way into every cell of the body, and there the spiritual being is fulfilled. It no longer cares about scientific or philosophical aspects of the method.

The intellect is at rest and the heart delights in the divine presence that resides in it. It tastes the pure nectar; it humbly gives thanks for this grace bestowed upon it – to go to the source within itself.

The principle is so simple: it is enough to surrender, to love truly; more than that, to adore, since only God can be adored. You will then feel light, happy, in a kind of beatitude. May you all get there!
