Whispers from The Brighter World

Wednesday, December 29, 1999 – 8:00 a.m.

Do you believe you are the only one doubting yourself? We went through the same moments of questioning with regard to what we were experiencing inwardly.

Your life, in a sense, is not ordinary. It's normal that you ask yourself about all the unusual experiences you are having.

Rest assured, if your journey is an enigma to you, for us you are a case apart. You are advancing in a sort of double life, while keeping a cool head and not really being surprised by all that happens to you.

If you suffer from living confined between the walls of your apartment, you have the compensation of mooring on shores that few humans have access to. You will never cease to intrigue us, and we love you as you are.

Bear your state courageously; do not let the incomprehension of others stop you. How many times have we said this to you? For our part, we are not deceived by appearances.

Make the most of these few special days during which you live moments that are humanly and spiritually powerful, with beings you love. We bless you all.
