Beloved Master
Revered Babuji Maharaj

Whispers from The Brighter World

Friday, December 31, 1999 – 8:00 a.m.

Prepare yourself for transformations that are taking place within you and that are likely to shake you up a little. You are moving more and more towards detachment by leaving aside the superfluous, the useless. Don't be worried; we are guiding you on the path of wisdom, where you are advancing step by step. Surrender yourself on my heart as you know so well how to do; you know that we watch over you and that we surround you with love. We know what you aspire to: peace amidst the worries of everyday life. You have so many problems to deal with, and we don't have the right person at the moment to relieve you of the many worries that are weighing you down.

A little more patience, my child. There is no miracle solution for the time being. You are finding peace of mind again as this year ends, by being helped by someone who suits you better, and that is already appreciable. Today's advice will be for all of you: be in acceptance and in surrender, it is the best that can happen to you.

Babuji