Continue, my child, as much as you can. As you have said, these contacts are the sun of your life, and we would miss them also. We were accustomed to this ritual and the possibility of expressing ourselves like this makes us happy.

"While my son is in Europe, particularly try to interiorise yourself to better receive and benefit from the fruits of his work. If you cannot go and meet him, make sure to at least connect with him in spirit and through the heart. His traveling towards you is to be regarded as a blessing. Make the most of it and be thankful for being able to benefit from it.

"The future will not always lend itself to these trips. You should be able to appreciate as is proper and become well aware of their importance.

"Very hard times will come and you will no longer have all the facilities currently available. Do not neglect your sadhana by devoting yourself to things of no importance. Each day of your life is precious; do not forget it. Lost time cannot be regained; it flees irremediably."
