Whispers from The Brighter World

Monday, January 10, 2000 – 8:00 a.m.

Rise above this world, come join us in these luminous spheres where you will rejoin us one day, when your Earthly course is complete. See how here everything is simple and harmonious. All beings are brothers and sisters, and they don't stab each other in the back, they help each other. They go to the least favoured, on other planets, to bring them comfort. Leaving Earth does not mean remaining inactive on a small cloud surrounded by angels if you have been very good. Action takes a different form, but an entity can become effective on the planes where its evolution allows it to act. Each one has the possibility, here below or elsewhere, to help according to their capabilities. True faith cannot exist without the need to make oneself useful. For the Creator, you are all but One, His creation. Each one of its elements is indispensable to the other, and that is the only way to achieve perfection. Try to imagine what remains to be done to attain that. God, in His great benevolence, will surely end up having pity on human beings and will make them better.
