Whispers from The Brighter World

Sunday, January 16, 2000 – 8:00 a.m.

We like motivated people, active people who are not afraid of hard work and who know how to get fully involved.

The Mission needs personalities like that. A building isn't built by looking at it; once it is built you can look at it, admire it and maintain it. It attracts insofar as its grandeur and power impress.

The front door is wide and open to all, allowing them to follow a path that leads to the discovery of the holy place. The best guide takes them forward, avoiding the pitfalls, giving them reason to hope that they will reach the shore and discover the splendour of the place. Does this work appeal to you all, despite the perseverance and effort it requires? Then it is up to you to take the plunge, without looking back, advancing with your head held high, full of ardour and faith; you won't regret it. It is time to shake off your rags, to free yourselves from all obstacles to your advancement, to arrive at the glorious goal of the journey, clothed only in your bodies of light.

The more you all advance on the path we've just described, the easier it is to move into another world; the veil lifts on its own; you have already done a large part of the work. You are taking the step by going into deep meditation, as you have become used to doing, and this presents no difficulty.

Continue to advance in this exercise; meditate as much as you can. Deepen your sadhana, so that you can taste, as of now, the joys of a true meditation. You will thus enrich your present life and your future life. There will remain no obstacle between the two. After your transition and a time to rest and look back, you will be able to take another road to go further and higher.

Choices will be proposed to you all, and it will be up to you to make them knowingly, but all that is far off. You still have a lot to do here below. We only wanted to respond, as far as we can, to the questions you are all asking.
