Do not neglect your health. Your body is entitled to certain attentions. It is a precious vehicle which must be treated with care. You must consider with respect what was given to you even if you do not have an athlete's stamina and an iron constitution.

"To let you cope with this incarnation, everything has been well thought out, therefore, you should accept what you are physically, intellectually and socially. Everything contributes to putting you in real life situations to make you advance, especially if you cooperate.

"You should realise well that superiority, as such, does not exist, except on the surface. You should never over-estimate yourself in comparison with others. Each part of the puzzle has its own importance in the construction of the whole, nothing more; the smallest is indispensable to the whole. If you belong to the elite, rejoice moderately by considering well what we have just said.

"Play your part. You will be asked for explanations, or rather it is you who will provide them. Make sure that the scales are accurate and even.

"A head of state, a king, a fabulously rich industry tycoon is nonetheless a man like others, with his weaknesses – and let us hope he has a heart, a soul driven by true aspirations of going towards the celestial greatness."
