Whispers from The Brighter World

Sunday, January 23, 2000 – 8:00 a.m.

Soon we will complete this series. You need rest, and the previous series must be finalized and printed. There is work to do; rigour is required in the corrections so that from the outset everything is in place. It is a blessing for all of you to be able to devote yourselves to this work. Time will decide the life of these messages, let it do its work. From now on, you will do your part with love and gratitude; contributing to the formatting of these documents is a personal enrichment.

Thanks to these writings, we will have come a long way together. May they leave their mark on you all, a subtle, indefinable fragrance in your hearts that you'll nevertheless be able to recognize. You are no longer quite the same as you were before, and won't be for the rest of your lives. You have to finish your work and all will be said; bless you all.
