Whispers from The Brighter World

Tuesday, January 25, 2000 – 8:00 a.m.

Don't worry, my daughter. There remain a few small finishing touches, but the main work is done.

Those who will read you won't realize the energy this work has required of you. These contacts have also brought you joy; it's right that there should be a compensation for this love-driven effort.

Love will have been the recurring theme of these messages. Their simplicity of reading and that which emanates from them will be felt by souls divested of the superfluous, of useless aspects, and who are not gratified by erudite words.

It's an exchange between two simple souls; this is what will touch the greatest number.

The more you all approach the truth, the better you will understand these comments.

We won't force you; today again, you need rest.

Accept these messages as they are; all has its raison d'être. Have trust in us.
