Whispers from The Brighter World

Wednesday, January 26, 2000 – 11:00 a.m.

Don't feel melancholic, my child, your mission is not over.

Remember that 'where one path ends, another begins.'
You can conclude by adding the few remaining pearls, and follow them with a poem by Kabir, of your choosing.

Pearls of Babuji

"Chance is an opportunity given to humans so that their destiny may be fulfilled."

"Our difficulties are only as important as we make them."

"It is not the living Master who is present everywhere, it is the divine energy that he polarizes and transmits."

"God: if one does not have God in one's life, that life lacks the most important dimension."

"Who are you as thinking and acting entities? Always consider yourselves to be as small as an atom in the hand of God."

"True grace is to find the strength to accept a trial."

"Any trial is initiatory if it is accepted."

"The Mission must become a buzzing beehive, distilling the best honey."

"Where one path ends, another begins."

Beneath the great umbrella of my King
Millions of suns and moons and stars are shining!
He is the Mind within my mind;
He is the Eye within mine eye.
Ah, could my mind and eyes be one!
Could my love but reach to my Lover!
Could but the fiery heat of my heart be cooled!

Kabir says:

When you unite love with the Lover,
then you have
love's perfection.

– Kabir[4]
