Whispers from The Brighter World

Sunday, March 31, 2002 – 10:00 a.m.

Don't worry, we are here, despite the time change, which you missed a little. People are fanciful in this respect too. These kinds of practices are meant to promote the economy of the country, they say, and they choose to ignore that a good number of people are destabilized by them. Humans are no stranger to paradox; profit matters above all, more than their own equilibrium.

Our contacts will thus adapt to the situation. You know that for us time and place don't matter. If you were on another planet, we would find a way to communicate.

For you humans, it's important to have a well-balanced life and to comply with precise schedules in your practices in all areas; we insist on this point.

The biological clock is one of the reasons for this, but there are others, particularly with relation to the vibratory density in which you are evolving.

Try, as much as possible, to conform to a regular observation of this aspect of life and to adopt a certain regularity in your habits, which will help you to maintain a good balance.

From the infinitely large to the infinitely small, all living things are subjected to a regularity and an absolute precision of movement.
