Beloved Master
Revered Babuji Maharaj

Whispers from The Brighter World

Thursday, June 28, 2001 – 10:00 a.m.

Your small voice of a child, as you call it, can touch hearts. Fine words are not the most convincing; sincere tones soften us more. Everything is so simple, why do humans always want to complicate everything?

What is more moving than a disciple's love for their Master and vice-versa?

This concept should never escape your attention; it can earn you all much forgiveness. It may seem outdated to you in this world where human reactions are disconcerting, focused on materialism and intellectual discourse, on the prevailing trends of thought – conformist and narrow.

Remain yourselves, free from all this clutter. Let your true nature emerge; it has no use for these ridiculous fashions, which categorize individuals into bizarre classifications. If gregarious instinct urges you all to live in society, try to keep your true personality without undergoing the harmful effects of this collectivity, moulded in stupid egotistical effects.

Be wary of fashions, of people's imagination, of their mental states, sometimes crazy, that can lead to the worst excesses.

In all circumstances, know how to remain united with the divinity residing within you. It cannot mislead you.

Babuji