Whispers from The Brighter World

Thursday, July 14, 2005 – 10:00 a.m.

Love, compassion and forgiveness are the foundations of a true spiritual journey.

Harbouring judgement and grievances within oneself slows progress considerably. Divesting oneself of the useless means emptying oneself of the undesirable.

Divine Love must be able to find a clear place in hearts, in order to settle and blossom as it pleases. This notion is fundamental; the era of the future will establish its victory in hearts, and finally, human beings will have understood where the secret of the divine life lies. The most beautiful speeches, the most elaborate essays are in vain, without this unique ferment capable of transcending matter. The transformation of humanity will pass through trying stages; human beings, regenerated in their essential aspects, will be born again and built for a higher life based on divine principles and in full compliance with them. Enormous work remains to be done; here, all the great sons of God are united in the service of the same cause, without distinction of any kind. Only humans are capable of harming each other in order to impose their ideas, unwilling to admit to points of view other than their own. To build the kingdom of peace in this world, to cleanse hearts by opening them to the transcendence of the Spirit, such is the goal of this higher authority, trying to calm humans in their excesses of all kinds.

For the divine power, nothing is impossible. The forces it animates act in the shadows, but they are formidable in their effectiveness, when the time comes.
