Whispers from The Brighter World

Tuesday, October 30, 2001 – 8:00 a.m.

My daughter, your steadfastness in effort allows us to not stop this work in spite of your deficient state of health. You belong to the race of fighters and we appreciate that. This steadfastness is what allows humans to move forward in their lives and to develop themselves. Spiritually, this quality, combined with unfailing faith in one's guide, brings the aspirant the expected results. None of you can assess your own progress, but be assured, it's real.

It can't be otherwise. This is where surrender justifies the trust you all have in us. By letting yourselves be guided, full of hope in the ultimate success, you place yourselves under the best conditions to obtain results.

Mistrust would cancel out the desired progress. This subtle alchemy that occurs in the hearts of human beings is subject to a few rules not codified by them. At the end of the journey, they will discover it. They will understand their mistakes while valuing what they end up getting in spite of them.

Divine mercy is great. Surrender and trust in it opens doors. Much is forgiven when love, this supreme asset, joins these two qualities. You all know the essential elements for success, be blessed in your endeavours.
