Whispers from The Brighter World

Sunday, November 8, 2015 – 10:00 a.m.

All is nothing, God is all; this notion is essential in the long journey of a soul towards its highest point of attraction, the connection with the 'Ultimate'. Each step is important, nothing is to be neglected; the true mystic is inspired and determined to move forward at all costs in the labyrinth of the Spirit, where only surrender can truly allow one to progress. Fears and doubts are recurrent obstacles; it's not easy to eliminate them from a life comprised of so many difficulties on the material plane. The greatest mystics have suffered and endured multiple trials that even today remain an example for the unseasoned seeker in the face of life's turpitudes.

Faith and commitment help one build a strong mind capable of withstanding the many trials that life has in store. When one is truly engaged in this spiritual path, it becomes easier to endure a karma that's impossible to circumvent; the laws here are of unparalleled rigour. Love, surrender and faith in the Master, who is invested with powers he himself cannot truly assess, are a very precious asset, invaluable, one might say. To each their faith, inner call and determination to conquer within themself that sacred space that calls and attracts beautiful souls in search of absolute serenity, that which protects one from all the baseness inherent in humankind.

To all, faith and courage, under our blessings.
