Whispers from The Brighter World

Sunday, September 19, 2004 – 10:00 a.m.

Advance joyfully, my child, life on this Earth is worth living. Each experience is enriching, everything must be considered from this point of view; that way, the path seems shorter. The most trivial or boring act can be adorned with grace when it's offered generously. The heart must interfere in the matters of the world; it has the power to embellish them, by giving a meaning that surpasses the framework in which they take place. Whatever is experienced and felt as being offered to the inner Master, to the Divine, completely changes the face of things.

You all must change your lives, adapting them to your personal approach; dominate them, constantly enrich yourselves, and be no longer overwhelmed by events of all kinds. Be the masters on board, master yourselves and be strong, everything is but vagaries here below. You have a spiritual Master; as fervent aspirants, you go beyond material life and its deceptive appearances. You no longer let yourselves be caught up in it as you did before. Your sadhana having changed your perceptions and broadened your vision of the world, you are all advancing more serenely, less involved in what isn't worthwhile. How much energy is wasted in this way, in any case, on ideas and endless debates where everyone holds on to their positions, convinced that they are right. A spiritual process helps one put things into perspective, question oneself and go beyond the useless.

There is no time to lose; life is short, every moment builds it. Be ardent in your practice, it can change it. You are all working on your own behalf, think about it. You are totally involved, so act. The action of your Master will be increased by it, it's in the nature of things.

May all be blessed and confident in their success.
