Whispers from The Brighter World

Thursday, January 2, 2003 – 10:00 a.m.

Create harmony within yourself and around you; attract searching hearts and help them in their quest. Redistribute generously that which we give you; your soul becomes stronger by doing so. Sharing at this level is a grace which falls to the hearts concerned. Divine love is an element that unifies the souls offered to it. This call becomes strong, it cannot be resisted, it elevates consciousness to the shores of bliss. Withdraw as often as possible into this oasis of peace, and nourish yourself to the full with the sublime energy, where your heart can let itself go in this boundless space.

Let love grow within you, you no longer belong to yourself. Let it carry you away like a powerful wave that cannot be resisted. Hearts that are dear to you will follow, swept up in this endless movement. To love to this extent is a enchantment; the rest takes second place as regards everyday life. This must be dealt with as well as possible, but only to the extent necessary, without allowing oneself to be caught up in what is not worthwhile. By becoming fully aware of the precariousness of life, events will not affect one excessively. Humans cannot escape the inevitable; faith is their only refuge and gives them strength in the face of life. Love develops in parallel with faith, and it surrounds the heart that surrenders to it with an aura of light.

May our path contribute to its development on Earth, in order that the new era be prepared for people of goodwill.
