Whispers from The Brighter World

Thursday, February 14, 2002 – 8:00 a.m.

On the path of true mystics is written Love, abnegation and devotion. It cannot be otherwise; this state of mind is the basis for all their actions. Their hearts are offered to divinity, towards which all their impulses go. Great beings are alike, they share the same values, the same commitments and an unfailing faith. They are an example for seekers who see in them role models, some of whom are particularly inspiring.

The light cannot remain hidden, it shows itself to the eyes of those who have an open heart and who seek their way.

God adorns some souls with all the graces; they are torches that illuminate the world and make it better. There are too few of them, but their influence is great; for them, distances don't count. God makes His choices so that humanity can have this recourse. In His great goodness, He takes pity on His children, who are struggling to emerge from this cesspool and grow from it. This is the perspective taking shape in this great project, leading humanity to ascend by passing through the ordeal of a purifying fire. Only souls who have travelled sufficiently far can understand these reasons, which are to bring humanity to a higher status.
