Whispers from The Brighter World

Thursday, July 12, 2001 – 10:00 a.m.

Your heart sings love, my daughter – this is a natural state for it. It is the best way to unite with the Divine. The mind and intellect are sometimes barriers which delay you all, if you are not careful. Beware of yourselves, you can be your own worst enemies, traitors for that matter, who intrude in your noble quest. The strength of your motivation must, sooner or later, overcome these barriers that slow your advancement.

There is no shortage of examples of this kind of renunciation or rather, we should say, of rebirth, in this area.

When the time comes, you feel in the deepest part of your being a call; it is inescapable, no barrier can resist it. The power of the divine wave is such that you re-examine yourselves, before setting off again, stronger and more determined to reach the goal.

You finally understand, you can see what stands in the way, and with full lucidity you reform your habits and start off again, lighter and free, on a path cleared of what is useless.

We keep reverting to the same stumbling blocks; it takes quite some time to lead you all to this conclusion.

Will you succeed? We are doing everything for that; the rest is up to you.
