Whispers from The Brighter World

Thursday, July 31, 2014 – 9:30 a.m.

Enter the heart of silence, where everything is forgotten – the sorrows, the sufferings that pummel your life. Many of our brothers and sisters are also on this journey that is painful in many respects. The only true refuge here is a contact such as this where, in these moments, serenity prevails. This call soothes the soul and the physical body benefits from it: its vibration changes, the pain is more bearable, and the heart rejoices. So many experiences the mystic will have to live through; sooner or later, aspects of this extraordinary journey that are as yet unknown reveal themselves. Going further and further into surrender, with a sincere and ardent call, inevitably leads to experiences such as these. Inner peace and true serenity carry one well beyond this world onto promising shores. Love, the real love advocated here, leads to uncommon experiences. It is the surest and most suitable vector in this particular circumstance. This love, divine in its essence, enraptures the soul. Isn't the ultimate goal this sacred conquest in which the whole being unites with the Ultimate? Following a spiritual path is the best way to bring the being to where it should be. Few people understand this. Our brothers and sisters have this privilege, they are on their way, committed to a greater or lesser degree, but on the right path, one that opens up the sacred doors leading them to bliss. There lies true happiness, you can be sure. One day – we repeat it once again – the divine goal will be achieved. All are enlightened and supported to the extent of their call.

Blessings to all.
