Whispers from The Brighter World

Friday, April 19, 2002 – 8:00 a.m.
Mahasamadhi of Babuji

On this day, may peace be in your hearts, and may love always remain therein. The memory of this day remains present in people's minds; be blessed for that. This day was unique for me; it enabled me to find again my lord and Revered Master, Lalaji.

We have already spoken about the Love binding Master and disciple; at a certain level, it is eternal. Is there anything nobler, more beautiful, than this fusion of two souls into God? It is all about sheer joy; it is unequalled, and beyond human sense-based perceptions.

Advancing in sadhana, you refine yourselves and you prepare your subtle bodies for other perceptions which are not of this world.

You are not wasting your time; by practising assiduously, you build yourselves a future life that is richer and more open to divinity.

Love the Master with all your soul; he is the highly qualified guide who can lead you to the highest spiritual joys.

There is no equivalent on this Earth. When you leave this body of flesh, what will outlive it is that which you shaped – through your perseverance and your faith – under his high protection.
