Beloved Master
Revered Babuji Maharaj

Whispers from The Brighter World

Saturday, October 6, 2007 – 10:00 a.m.

The source is inexhaustible, as you know. You just have to call upon it so that it absorbs your burning soul, which is craving for it.

In these blessed moments, you are in a state of wonder. So many hearts also call upon the divine power with the same impulse; there are so many of them. This privilege is not exclusive to our way. The sincere love of humans, whatever their source of inspiration, is only One. The divine power is an attractive energy; it draws to itself very keen hearts whose call is sincere. The form of their devotion is a matter of circumstance, depending on the environment, the country and the prevailing customs. To love God sincerely, deeply, is to be part of a large family that is motivated by the same objective.

Everything has been already said, and yet it is good, once again, to call it to mind. Love your Master as you do so well. He is the reliable guide, capable of opening the doors of bliss to you.

May all be blessed and carried to the zenith, where wonder is achieved.

Babuji