Whispers from The Brighter World

Sunday, December 29, 2002 – 10:00 a.m.

The blooming of the soul makes one humble; when the heart is jubilant with joy and gratitude towards its Creator, how could it be otherwise. The superiority of humans, as understood on Earth, means nothing. Divine measurements are very different. The beauty of a soul lies beyond human appreciation.

This domain is reserved, secret – Love creates beauty therein. Love is the vital force, the rare energy. Although it is not perceived like this here below, it animates the worlds and maintains them in their integrity. It builds and in no way destroys. Few hearts really understand it and recognize it for what it is. Tomorrow's world, if it wants to remain and thrive, will have to re-examine all its philosophy of life and imperatively align itself with the divine laws, without disregarding them as it currently does.

This planet is at a turning point in its history. It went through others that completely destroyed it, and humans, who believe they are so erudite, are mistaken about the facts.

Only love will be able to save the world – we repeat it loud and clear.

This concept should establish itself in our Mission, and our brothers and sisters should consider it to be of paramount importance. They are not isolated elements advancing exclusively for their own benefit, they are part of a whole from which they cannot dissociate.

The spiritual life is One, and each one belongs to the great heavenly and divine body. Humans still have much to do to understand this reality.
