Eulogizing Love, praising God, and praising their Master – what could be better for those who are fervent and strong in their faith! They attract divine grace, which finds such hearts to be a chosen place.

Isn't everything else useless except this process? What remains of a life, what is imperishable, when one leaves this world: even the great names are lost in the memory of time.

To praise God is to take part in the Great Work, which is imperceptible to human beings. They emanate from it, but they don't have the necessary perspective. Which approach should they have? They are bathed in an energy that they cannot define. Are they aware of it? Certainly not. These phenomena are completely beyond them.

Divine Love is the subtlest vibration in existence. It is the best element in humans. We use this channel to help them progress, our way draws on this great redeeming principle, which is operating in this world at the dawn of the new era. This energy generates the greatest achievements although it cannot claim to sign them. They alone are recorded among the true heritage of humanity. All the rest is transitory and illusory.

Arousing Love in people's hearts is a noble mission. It is done in silence, without any effect that could create people's admiration. Great achievements are accomplished in the secrecy of hearts.
