Whispers from The Brighter World

Wednesday, August 18, 2004 – 10:00 a.m.

Nourish yourself with love; your soul is craving for it and this need will constantly keep growing, prompting you to detachment. How could a cold heart move towards this state. Only love can fill it with wonder and change it completely. A life without love is a sad life; love alone opens the doors to the Infinite, showing the best way to take to reach that point. This is a topic that delights you: you love these comments bringing within you a special state of grace, which your soul delights in. All topics must be addressed here: from the future of humanity in its less rejoicing aspects to the delectable emotions of a heart overwhelmed by divine love, this supreme nourishment.

It structures a being in its essential and unique aspects, with a view to merging with the Ultimate. How can we detach from this topic today, when by successive waves, grace is carrying you towards other shores, which does not facilitate the work of the scribe. That does not matter; this kind of message is the best remedy for a nostalgic heart feeling so humanly far away from its Master, and even more so from its beloved guides. A human being, however fulfilled he or she may be on this plane, always feels a lack, an emptiness unexplainable through reasoning. How could we fill a heart, if it were not precisely in this situation of emptiness and calling out to us!

Maintaining grace in oneself is to call it permanently, and then give it as an offering to the Beloved. Love attracts love; it is the magic and endless circle. Love, my child, it is your vocation and we will not oppose it, quite the opposite.
