Whispers from The Brighter World

Wednesday, June 19, 2002 – 10:00 a.m.

It is necessary to put up well with the ravages of aging; I experienced them, what else can we do! You still have a domain where everything keeps growing and becoming more beautiful. This secret garden, hidden from inquisitive eyes, gives you many compensatory joys. Take refuge in it and dismiss regrets about what is no longer.

Other prospects are taking shape for you; they will not be subjected to the effects of time. Remain centred as much as possible on your inner process. See it as being pleasant at the utmost; let it bring you the subtlest joys, erasing your torments. You have this great opportunity; feel sorry for those who do not have this refuge, who ignore God and do not know that an elsewhere exists as an extension of this life, which they believe ends definitively with death.

Endlessly thank God and the Masters who show you the way. It is open before you; nothing can repress your impulses, which do not depend on your physical form.

The power of thought is great, you know this; it can build worlds.

You should practise seeing this one better and seeing the souls of your brothers and sisters rise joyfully.

Arrange for yourself endless voyages into the spheres of the spirit where the divine power gives its best.
