A Fourth Revelation

It is true: a rigorous practice does not exclude some imagination. It is necessary to put things in perspective. Laughter and joy are necessary for your balance. Imagination, a reasonable amount of it, is positive and can be creative.

"Look at your Master; he can laugh and benefit from little pleasures, like anybody. Loving God, loving your Master must make you happy. Is there anything more beautiful in this world than having a true goal, beyond what you achieve on the family and professional level?

"You give a meaning to your life which goes very far and whose extensions will make a success of it. You have understood and you answer a very strong call that comes from the heart. It is irresistible and it transforms your life. What would it be without this process? You would feel a vacuum inside you, a dissatisfaction that nothing could fill, even by getting drunk on pleasures.

"When the time has come for a soul to be guided, it sees the guiding light and it knows that it will be spared the pitfalls.

"Therefore, be happy, without remorse. You will be a model for your circle and 'Love Him, He who loves all'."
