Whispers from The Brighter World

Friday, March 10, 2000 – 8:30 a.m.

You serve us, it would be time that you become truly aware of that. It's not about a material and quantifiable work, we are beyond these notions. You are so scared of entertaining false ideas that you don't realize what actually is.

You are a channel for us with multiple functions – the one you perform every day with these messages, yet there are the others that you don't really identify. Never mind, let the work be done that operates through you and that you are not aware of. You let us act as we please and we benefit from that. You are a relay; we need incarnate beings completely available and offered to divine action. Don't change, my child, remain surrendered and grateful for the graces you receive.
