Whispers from The Brighter World

Monday, March 27, 2000 – 5:00 p.m.

Don't try anymore to find out who I am. Where would that get you? I am, that's all. Let it be enough for you to agree to be the instrument of the Divine and to think that you are living an uncommon experience.

A name, a form are human references. We gave you this image of me so that you have a visual support, but it should end there. As far as we are concerned, that is of no interest, so let us not come back to the subject; simply be yourself. Thus will this matter be settled; it's better not to waste your energy on useless speculation.

Be content with living this situation as best you can, and we'll be satisfied. Uniting oneself with the Divine can be achieved in this world, it is a question of a personal journey and a deep call from the heart. God fulfils the souls thirsty for His Presence.

The Venerable

The Medium: Babuji, what do we become, the two of us?

You are in good hands.
