Sulochana

Whispers from The Brighter World

Friday, June 16, 2000 – 10:00 a.m.

I am often near you, my dear husband, without the human shortcomings you endured. I lived close to an exceptional being without really realizing it. The problem of incarnated beings is that they don't realize the true nature of those around them, even when it's obvious.

Your radiance is great, your power as a spiritual Master boundless. I have discovered the real extent of your power, and it leaves me disconcerted. Was I the ideal companion? I have my doubts. Why must we be blinkered on this Earth? One cannot change anything from the past, except to take stock and see the shortcomings of this incarnation. I am in your wake as much as possible, as is all those who love you and support you in your heavy task.

You must fulfil your mission to the end, before coming to rejoin us and finally tasting this unique peace you aspire to. I am only the best of the one you once knew. It gives me joy to be able to express myself and tell you that I am often close to all of you.

May the love that surrounds you carry you on the luminous path that is yours.

Sulochana