Your life is really not ordinary, and you experience all of that as something very natural. You flutter between two worlds – this one, said to be normal and the other paranormal – with the greatest ease. You remain serene and confident, able to discriminate between reality and illusion. You are a reliable medium and we appreciate it. This has to be repeated, even if we've long been expressing our confidence by giving you all these messages. Those who doubt, or who will doubt in the future, the possibility of communicating with the beyond, still have a lot to learn and a long way to go in knowledge. Nothing can force humans to have such open-mindedness.

It will still take a long time for a majority to admit this possibility, which, if properly utilized, could change the face of the world.
