Whispers from The Brighter World

Saturday, July 1, 2000 – 10:00 a.m.

My son aspires to a more frequent communication with us. Do you feel able to manage?

The technical means required for this seem to be well designed. We will make some more targeted tests. The messages he has received filled him with joy. It took a long time for the system to be put in place; this is how it is in your world where nothing is simple.

My dear daughter, you are going to have the opportunity to give the best of yourself. We know that you want only this: to serve us.

Making my son happy is a joy for me. It is a way for all of us here to show him concretely, with these messages that are but mere words laid down on paper, how much we support him in his action and how much he is appreciated and beloved.

His path, contrary to what you all may think, is far from being easy.

With this sort of correspondence, we have the means to put some balm on his heart.

May our hopes in this regard materialize for the good of all.
