Whispers from The Brighter World

Friday, July 7, 2000 – 10:00 a.m.

Do not fear anything, wherever you may be, we remain in contact. Even if this does not result in a written message, you can rest assured, we can communicate in all circumstances.

At another level, you will note that the distance of M and J does not change anything in your relationship and how we manage our affairs.

The modern means are very efficient; distances no longer matter and information can circulate freely, without any problem.

Many individuals would be able to communicate with us, but in your industrialized societies where humans no longer know how to interiorize themselves, they block latent capacities that cannot blossom.

They have a need for action, noise; their senses are perpetually on the alert. They no longer know how to listen to nature, or to respect the body and its basic needs.

They lose their balance, their health, caught up in a mad world that inexorably distances them from the real goal of life.

Will humans one day return to more wisdom, discovering the many riches of a life in which a balance between the material and the spiritual is respected? It is the goal we have set for ourselves in bringing to the world this remarkable tool which is our method.
