Whispers from The Brighter World

Monday, July 24, 2000 – 7:00 a.m.

My dear son, we've been waiting a long time for this kind of communication to be established.

Don't regret having doubted; doubt is human and you share it in large doses with our medium. You should know that it's not obvious for her either, and we still prefer this attitude to overconfidence.

We have chosen and prepared her for a precise purpose, which is to bring you, in certain complex situations, another echo to your cogitations.

Do not be affected too much by what is happening in France and other countries of Europe; the evil has the same origin. No path has imposed itself on a large scale without sooner or later meeting this kind of resistance. One has only to look back into past centuries, when so many tragedies were brought about by human stupidity. There's nothing we can do about it. Evil must arise to let the beauty manifest of a system that will find its due place, whatever the cost, to help this mad world.

It will bring to the people of this Earth a means to live more in accordance with divine laws.

We support you and we love you, my dear son. Be blessed, so very highly, on this special day.

Babuji
