Whispers from The Brighter World

Thursday, July 27, 2000 – 8:00 a.m.

Better days will come for the Mission in France. Before that, there will be a difficult period to go through. Abhyasis will have to stick together and rise above their usual disagreements. It is this union that will enable them to overcome the difficulties that are bound to arise. The most motivated will be strengthened in their desire to forge ahead, against all odds. Nothing is ever final, either way. A sincere approach, a rigorous practice and cohesion between members will overcome everything.

Do not be sad, my daughter. France will not revert to the regime of the Inquisition in all its harshness, as was the case in the past. The evil, which is believed to be repressed, sometimes comes back when least expected.

Your strength is within you all. This is the opportunity to work so that it develops, turning you into lions on the rise.

We are by your side, in any case – never doubt it.
