Whispers from The Brighter World

Wednesday, August 16, 2000 – 11:00 a.m.

When will you stop letting yourself be trapped by subjective impressions as you do? You should not get involved in any consideration of this kind.

Take note, do what we expect of you, and don't be in that system of mental cogitation that hinders you in relation to the role we would like to see you play.

My son's entourage doesn't count in this matter. He has his own habits with people who have been faithful to him for years. It is pleasant for him to always meet up with the same acquaintances. It makes his trips easier; they are numerous and tiring, and feeling at ease with his faithful followers is relaxing for him.

You would react in the exact same way and we don't see how that can bother you.

It is the service that counts, you know it. Therefore, try to be reasonable and divest yourself of useless reactions, which don't serve our cause.

That is our request to you.
