Don't be afraid of linking up personally with my son. In the past, your attitude towards him has not encouraged him to come towards you.

You must, on both sides, forge ahead and overcome these reactions that have distorted the situation from the outset. We have been patient; you had to experience painful events and progress towards accepting a particular relationship subject to these mediumistic contacts.

This relationship with us is old and more normal to you than it is to him, who had to accept it fully. With the barriers removed, we will be able to advance. You may both think that we insist strongly. Incarnate beings need these ceaseless repetitions when we want to make them advance in our views. As soon as you all get away from what is considered normality, you create in yourselves, or more exactly in your minds, an attitude of suspicion, which is useful most of the time but not justified in the matter that concerns us.

When you come and rejoin us, you will finally have all the elements to help you understand our insistence. Little by little, you end up accepting that which did not seem possible to you before.

Your love and your faith in us must be enough for you for the moment, with our blessings.

(Later in sitting with M)

Let's stop turning our backs on one another and move forward together in His direction.
