Whispers from The Brighter World

Saturday, October 14, 2000 – 10:00 a.m.

It is not easy to imagine the work of a medium. It is not a matter of a dictation given word for word, but grasping our thought quickly and making adjustments when necessary to ensure a good understanding of the text. Some days are more conducive than others to this exchange; you have to realize this.

With these messages, you have food for thought. We do not give you, as in some books written in all good faith, information to satisfy your curiosity; that is not our purpose.

We want to help you to progress while remaining within the limits of what we can say to you. We do not want to fuel your imagination by making you dream of sublime worlds. You have to make do with what is within your reach and work on yourselves with the means we place at your disposal.

We want to make you understand the need for personal transformation, which is the best tool for your evolution.

In this spirit, please understand that everything we say to you constitutes a precious teaching which you can use as you wish. It's up to you to see and take stock of what you really want.
